Internationally recognised for its birdlife, St Kilda is no less famous for its human history. A community existed here for at least 4,000 years, exploiting the dense colonies of gannets, fulmars and puffins for food, feathers and oil. The final 36 islanders were evacuated in 1930. Meet the last families of St Kilda with Elisabeth Gifford's new booklet. The Last Families of St Kilda is filled with captivating photographs and details of those who called the island home, just before the evacuation in 1930. This booklet would make an excellent addition to your bookshelf.

St Kilda remains a symbol of the ability of man to survive in the most hostile of environments and it remains a fascination

St Kilda is an isolated archipelago of volcanic islands that lie 40 miles to the west of the main archipelago chain. With the highest sea cliffs in Britain, St Kilda is the most important sea bird breeding station in north west Europe.

Lying 41 miles off the west coast of Benbecula, the archipelago of St Kilda is an extreme Atlantic outpost, and one of the few World Heritage Sites in existence awarded 'Dual' status for meeting both the natural and cultural criteria for the classification.

With its clear waters and craggy sea cliffs (including one that ranks as Europe's highest) it is not surprising that St Kilda is home to the continent's largest colony of seabirds including gannets and puffins.

St Kilda is a dual UNESCO world heritage site and national nature reserve. It's home to the world's largest colony of Gannets & Fulmars. Also the biggest colony of puffins in Britain with highest sea cliffs and sea stacks in Britain. Visit St Kilda to experience dramatic scenery, spectacular seabirds and unique isolation to ponder their poignant history.

St Kilda was continuously inhabited for two millennia or more, from the Bronze Age to the 20th century. However, little is known of the early history, the first written record of which dates from the late 14th century when John of Fordun mentions 'the isle of Irte, which is agreed to be under the Circius and on the margins of the world'. The islands were historically part of the domain of the MacLeods of Harris whose steward was responsible for the collection of rents in kind and other duties.
